

Coming from a family with 10 kids of mixed political views, I understand that we may disagree from time to time—we may even strongly disagree—but that’s what’s great about this country: even with our differences we can agree that we live in a great nation with much to be thankful for.

This week, I hope we all take a moment to put our differences aside and remember those heroes who serve our communities at home and abroad. Give thanks to those who fought to protect us, those who never returned and the families who have an empty seat at their table this Thanksgiving.

Above all else, we should all remember that God has blessed our nation as the land of liberty and prosperity. Never forget how precious the gift of freedom is and the sacrifices made to ensure America always remains the land of the free and the home of the brave. So from my family to yours... I hope you have a safe and happy Thanksgiving with family and friends.

By empowering small business and reducing regulatory hurdles that are shackling growth, we can once again unleash the promise of the American dream and usher in a new era of economic prosperity. So forget the shopping malls today and support your local small businesses!
